Brian DePratto joined the TD Economics team in July 2014. His work focuses on the Canadian economy, as well as environmental issues. Prior to joining TD, Brian worked as a senior analyst at the Bank of Canada. He contributes to a number of different TD publications, and presents regularly to TD clients, business units, and external organizations. His analysis is frequently referred to in the financial media.

Brian holds a Masters of Arts degree in Economics from the University of British Columbia and an Honours Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics, International Economics Specialization from the University of Waterloo.