What does the fund invest in?

The fund seeks to achieve long-term capital growth and current income by investing primarily in common stocks of large and medium-sized U.S. blue chip companies which are well established in their respective industries with the potential for above average growth. Current income is also an objective, as many of the stocks in the fund's portfolio are expected to pay dividends. The fund will focus on issuers that generate free cash flow and reinvest it in a way that generates a return on investment greater than the issuer's cost of capital rather than traditional accounting measures such as price-to-book or price-to-earnings ratios.

How risky is it?

The value of the fund can go down as well as up. You could lose money.

One way to gauge risk is to look at how much a fund's returns change over time. This is called "volatility".

In general, funds with higher volatility will have returns that change more over time. They typically have a greater chance of losing money and may have a greater chance of higher returns. Funds with lower volatility tend to have returns that change less over time. They typically have lower returns and may have a lower chance of losing money.

Risk rating

TDAM has rated the volatility of this fund as medium to high.

This rating is based on how much the fund's returns have changed from year to year. It doesn't tell you how volatile the fund will be in the future. The rating can change over time. A fund with a low risk rating can still lose money.

A word about tax

In general, you'll have to pay income tax on any money you make on a fund. How much you pay and/or when you pay depends on the tax laws where you live, the type of distributions made by the fund and whether or not you hold the fund in a registered plan such as a Registered Retirement Savings Plan or a Tax-Free Savings Account.

Keep in mind that if you hold your fund in a non-registered account, you must include taxable fund distributions in your taxable income, whether you get them in cash or have them reinvested.
