Opening doors for a more inclusive and sustainable tomorrow

Message from Andrea Barrack

In the spirit of Financial Literacy Month, in the U.S. and Canada, TD Bank is proud to continue investing in financial education and programs that help make learning about money and investing accessible and easier for people of all ages, to help them build the financial security they need to participate in today's – and tomorrow's – economy.

As part of our efforts to help improve financial well-being, we are supporting 1,320 organizations and initiatives that aim to:

1. Open doors to opportunity and create new paths for growth in communities.
2. Connect people to work and help bridge the skills gap.
3. Improve the ability to meet financial and personal needs.
4. Advance innovation in Canada and the U.S.

The grants will help the organizations deliver and scale their programs to address some of the biggest barriers people face and to help provide personalized treatment plans for people with diabetes.

In late October, we proudly announced the first ten grant recipients for 2018, selected from over 1,000 submissions. With a total of CDN $10 million (USD $775 million) awarded, the TD Ready Challenge awards program reflects our commitment to help provide primary care to underserved children in Washington, D.C., help provide opportunities for underrepresented groups, to helping harness the power of technology solutions for better health care.

The TD Ready Challenge promotes innovation and access to funding for not-for-profits in North America whose goals are to help create a more accessible and inclusive, digitally connected society.

The First Ten Grant Recipients

In total, 1,320 units of affordable housing will be added in the U.S.

In Canada and the U.S., funding approved to support the TreePhilly program, which will help provide opportunities for not-for-profits in North America whose goals are to help create a more accessible and inclusive, digitally connected society.
