

April 21, 2017

TD Economics

Data Release: Inflation mellows in March

- Consumer price inflation decelerated to 1.6% (year-on-year) in March from 2.0% in February. Most categories experienced a slower rate of price growth in March, with decelerating energy prices leading the way. The broader, transportation price growth slowed to 4.6% from 6.6% in February.
- Declining food prices (-1.9% y/y) and clothing and footwear prices (-0.9% y/y) weighed on the headline.
- The Bank of Canada's core measures softened, with CPI-median edging down to 1.7% (from 1.8%), and CPI-trim to 1.4% (from 1.5%), and CPI-common unchanged at a feeble 1.3%.

Key Implications

- Economic data has turned up in Canada in recent months, but softening inflation gives the Bank of Canada scope to fade some of that strength and await confirmation that it will be sustained. The deceleration in the core measures in particular means the Bank of Canada will be in no rush to remove accommodation.
- Soft inflation and wage growth is the best evidence that the Canadian economy continues to operate under its potential. With faster economic growth, the output gap will eventually close and begin to exert upward pressure on inflation. However, this is likely to be more of a 2018 story than a 2017 one.

James Marple, Senior Economist
416-982-2557

 @TD_Economics

This e-mail is client and customer friendly.

If you would like to unsubscribe from our research, please reply to this e-mail with the subject line "Unsubscribe". If you would like to unsubscribe from receiving commercial electronic messages from TD Bank Group, please follow this link.

DISCLAIMER

This report is provided by TD Economics. It is for informational and educational purposes only as of the date of writing, and may not be appropriate for other purposes. The views and opinions expressed may change at any time based on market or other conditions and may not come to pass. This material is not intended to be relied upon as investment advice or recommendations, does not constitute a solicitation to buy or sell securities and should not be considered specific legal, investment or tax advice. The report does not provide material information about the business and affairs of TD Bank Group and the members of TD Economics are not spokespersons for TD Bank Group with respect to its business and affairs. The information contained in this report has been drawn from sources believed to be reliable, but is not guaranteed to be accurate or complete. This report contains economic analysis and views, including about future economic and financial markets performance. These are based on certain assumptions and other factors, and are subject to inherent risks and uncertainties. The actual outcome may be materially different. The Toronto-Dominion Bank and its affiliates and related entities that comprise the TD Bank Group are not liable for any errors or omissions in the information, analysis or views contained in this report, or for any loss or damage suffered.